

WOMEN DEPUTIES SWORN IN.

Gambling and Bathing Suits at Rockaways to be Watched.

Gambling and the wearing of bathing suits of diminutive proportions are to be watched for by a score of women Special Deputy Sheriffs sworn in yesterday by Sheriff Samuel Mitchell of Queens for duty in the Rockaways this summer. The "Sheriffettes," as they were named, go on duty today.

According to Under Sheriff William Desmond, one of the women sworn in asked if her authority permitted her to make arrests for gambling. She said that passing Rockaway bungalows she often heard such things as "I'll raise you a chip," "It's your bet," and she was certain that gambling was on. Although she was informed that betting was legal in private homes, she announced that she was going to conduct a gambling crusade all by herself.